

WINNERS OF LA CHAINE DES ROTISSEUR SCHOLARSHIPS 2019

The School of Trades and Technology hosted the Awards Ceremony for its outstanding students May 29th 2019 at the Interurban Campus, Camosun College, Victoria BC. At that event, La Chaîne des Rôtisseurs, Bailliage of Victoria, annually awards scholarships to two students who have successfully completed Professional Cook 1 or PC 2 in Culinary Arts leading to a Red Seal Professional Cook designation.

Our expectation for our awards in each year is that they will be awarded to "an apprentice who has successfully completed the year's programme, shown great progress with an exemplary attitude and has consistently demonstrated a desire to learn while achieving above average marks."

First year student, Sean Oei, was introduced to the audience by the Dean who said that "Sean's dedication to push himself to learn never went unnoticed. His desire to compete in culinary competitions fueled his drive to succeed. Sean consistently had top marks in both theory and practical assignments". Sean is an apprentice at the Delta Ocean Pointe Hotel.

The Dean described Second year student, Matt Chiaradia very differently. He said that "the word "awesome" is frequently associated with Matt as he constantly demonstrated exceptional work ethics. His maturity and professionalism drove him to excel at any task he was assigned. Quiet, yet confident leadership skills are comfortable for Matt and a very bright future lies ahead for this talented young man. We are pleased to hear that Matt has joined the kitchen brigade at The Inn at Laurel Point where he will be working under the expertise of Executive Chef Takashi Ito who is a highly respected member of La Chaîne. Last year Chef Ito mentored First Cook Joseph Tran who won the prestigious 42nd Concours International des Jeunes Chefs competition in Keelung Taiwan.
